THE EDITOR'S NOTES

To the tenderfoot the present weather conditions are unusual and exasperating. Some of the late comers to this country had about given up hope of ever seeing real live mud, but it is now proven that in some periods at least this south country does get wet. Of course, this condition is general all over the West, only in some districts it is more pronounced than here. The spring is now much later than usual but is far not dangerously backward. The greatest aggravation is in the fact that the limited supplies of horse feed are being rapidly consumed before seeding is accomplished and there is no possibility of obtaining further supplies of hay. No doubt the acreage will be reduced considerable as nothing but land already prepared can be seeded in time for safe harvest. The farmers are getting pretty anxious all right, but "nerves" will accomplish nothing. The country would produce nothing without moisture, so let us be content in the abundance of it now in evidence. No growth or germination is accounted for before May as a rule and wheat can still have its one hundred and ten days and bring an early harvest. It's a cinch Johnny will have to travel while the sun shines this spring—but there is the gambler's hope for the big returns.

Dairy butter has been a scarce article around town for a month or more, while the creamery butter even at the additional price of ten or twenty cents a pound was no treat. Mr. Elliott tells us that during December and the first two weeks in January his firm shipped out over fifteen hundred pounds of the local product, so it can be easily seen that the present shortage will be well overcome as soon as warm weather brings on the grass. It is a notable fact that more cows are now being milked than a few years back. And while the cattle herds were greatly reduced in the drouth area last fall the real milch cows were kept over in nearly every instance. Most farmers find that it is these never-failing small sources of revenue that mark the difference between profit and loss.

Eggs are holding strong at forty cents and we are told that the local supply exceeds the demand by about seven hundred dozen a week.

o o o o o

We haven't yet solved the socialistic and economic problem of the farmer, nor yet are we satisfied in our own mind that the problem or condition of the farmer is more acute than that of any other class of people. The farmer by sheer weight of numbers has the remedy unto himself, if he would but awaken and realize the fact, while on the other hand the advantages the capitalistic interests have gained are much the result of individual and concentrated effort. The farmer must change his cry from a grouse at being legislated against to an appeal for legislation in his own particular interests. No attention should be given the other fellows at all. Never mind they'll be out and blowing their own horns loud enough to attention. You may think this a selfish doctrine but you will find it most practical.

Constable Maddison as Scoutmaster is finding his job pretty much left to himself. The boys have been brought along admirably up to the present stage of their training, yet a little more outside activity and interest might be given by some of the men which would re-act favorably on the boys and at the same time afford assistance to the Scoutmaster.

The same principle in argument holds good with the Lomond Band. The people seem to think that the original donation towards the purchase of instruments is the end of all responsibility, and that somebody else should be tickled to death to practice and play on the bally well horns. A small town band is a much maligned organization at the best, and it is always one continual round of training new and raw material. But you cannot leave it all to the boys. More of the mature citizens should step in and help make things go.

If we were to print one quarter of one per cent of what some of the people think and say about the machinations of the Soldier Settlement Board we wouldn't get out in time for harvest, even though the drouth continued for the next five years. The innumerable inspectors and road agents the Board keeps on the road is a strong argument for an increase in the tariff. If a private corporation conducted affairs with such a duplication of effort and waste of energy it would soon go to the wall. But it looks as if anything goes as long as the people will pay taxes and keep their mouths shut. Another thing, and that is the fact that the Board taboos this south country in many deals yet passes through a number of others. If it isn't good policy to allow one soldier to farm in a dry country, a couple of hundred dollars difference in the price of a quarter section should not be the means of influencing the Board against the best interests of another soldier. Why can't we get business principles introduced into our public institutions?

Canadians must still pay three cents on letter postage to help buy political red tape and to make up the deficiency of mismanagement like unto that in the above article.

SHORT WEIGHT BUTTER PRINTS MAKE TROUBLE

The act pertaining to weight of butter, in prints, reads in part as follows: "No person shall manufacture, sell, or have in his possession for sale any butter cut into blocks, prints or squares, that are not of the full net weight of sixteen ounces."

Numerous infractions of this act have resulted in several prosecutions by the Inspector of Dairy Supplies, and more are likely to follow.

Farmers! Your duty is to see that your butter is put up in full sixteen ounces to each print, or you are liable to a very heavy fine and confiscation of your butter wherever it may be found.

Country Merchants! According to the act you are liable to a very heavy fine and confiscation of your butter wherever found if not full sixteen ounces to each print.

The scales should be used on each print.

Neil Currie's house, north of Kinnondale, was burned on Monday afternoon along with all the contents. Mr. Currie was in Lomond after a load of seed and Mrs. Currie had gone to the Kinnondale post office. It is thought that the high wind had blown some sparks from the cookstove, yet no definite conclusion can be given as to the origin of the blaze. The neighbors are circulating a subscription list to help him into a new start.

Charley Delaney is down from Calgary for the seeding season.
